ARTWORK NETWORK TAKES TIME FOR "WATCH-ING CHANGE"

(Denver) Artwork Network presents "Watch-ing Change" by Jeff Basinkewitz from August 23rd through October 1st, 2008 at the Artwork Network Showroom 878-1 Santa Fe Drive in Denver's Art District on Santa Fe Drive.

Emerging artist Jeff Basinkewitz was inspired by the current political climate and feels our country is hopeful and excited to have the opportunity to 'watch' the imminent and historic changes taking place. "Change is just a matter of time, time is what it takes to allow for change to occur, our country needs a change." says Jeff.

The show includes 5 large images, depicting an abstract collage of watch parts, each 13.5 feet high. Each piece is installed to give the impression of giant clock pendulums and are constructed using transparencies and aluminum structural elements using the light to create a dramatic 3 dimensional look. These striking time-pieces are on display August 23rd through October 1st at Artwork Network's new Showroom on 9th and Santa Fe.

Artwork Network represents collectors, interior designers and businesses in finding the perfect art or art services they need, through their online gallery, art rotation and consulting services. For more information contact www.artworknetwork.com
