Artwork Network Settles Onto Santa Fe Drive
Same building, new space.

(Denver) Artwork Network is excited to announce that it has shifted its showroom and operations to the front unit of 878 Santa Fe Drive into the former location of T Gallery. The move, effective July 15th 2009, doubles their space, increases visibility and solidifies their five year presence in the Art District on Santa Fe. The public is invited to an open house celebration of the new space on August 21st from 5:30 to 9 PM.

Owner Alan Kircher now holds the master lease on this building at 878 Santa Fe as well as Artwork Network Studios on Inca around the corner at 855 Inca. Both locations house artist work studios that he leases out. "Our experience on the Art District has been very positive. I have grown my business from a one room office to this fantastic space. I attribute much of that to the location, the accessibility of our art, and the approachability of my staff." He is currently in negotiations with an organization to occupy the rear unit of 878 Santa Fe Drive.

Although it appears to be a traditional gallery on the outside, Artwork Network operates under a different business model. They provide a hassle-free membership based online marketing tool for artists and galleries to establish or enhance their web presence. The art consulting, art rotation and art leasing services for businesses also create new opportunities for our artist members' work to be seen and sold. This unique approach, that supports both emerging and established artists, is more effective in a down economy because it does not rely exclusively on selling art of the showroom wall. It also helps artists reduce their costs while having a professional-looking and user friendly online presence that is essential to effectively marketing their work.

As with the previous location, the new showroom will consistently highlight a selection of artist members' work and participate in the First Friday Art Walk. They will also continue to serve as the only art gallery currently licensed as a wine tasting room for Bonacquisti Wine Company

The "Third Friday" open house will highlight new works by Carolyn Naiman, Mardie Driftmier, and the 12 finalists from the first Artwork Network Online Juried Show held in May. Also on display will be a selection of work by additional member artists. Bonacquisti wine will be available for sale by the glass.
